DocuSign Continues to Hire, Fueled by its Rapid Global Growth, with San Francisco as Corporate Headquarters

SAN FRANCISCO—April 15, 2015—Last night DocuSign, Inc. (DocuSign®) was named to the San Francisco Business Times and the Silicon Valley Business Journal's “Best Places to Work 2015 List” for the fourth consecutive year. This designation celebrates outstanding companies whose employees rate them as the best in the Greater Bay Area.

"Congratulations to our employees worldwide for driving the company's tremendous, fast-paced growth and for your individual contributions to making DocuSign a great place to work," said DocuSign's Chief Human Resources Officer Peter Navin. "We're fortunate to help transform the way business gets done, and transform charities with digital business to make the world a better place."

Quick Facts & Figures

- DocuSign has grown from roughly 300 employees in January 2013, to more than 1,200 as of March 2015. The company projects that more than 400 employees will be based in its SF headquarters by year-end, up from nearly 300 in 2013.
- Since its inception, DocuSign has made three strategic acquisitions – Cartavi, Comprova, and ARX – to round out its Digital Transaction Management (DTM) offerings and help businesses worldwide go digital.
- DocuSign has more than 50 million users in 188 countries and is available in 43 languages. More than 50,000 new unique users join the DocuSign Global Trust Network every day.
- DocuSign Impact, www.docusign.com/company/docusign-impact, designed to transform lives by transforming nonprofits launched in March 2015.
