DocuSign expands Global Advisory Board

2017-05-03

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- DOCUSIGN MOMENTUM 2017 -- DocuSign announced today strategic additions to its Global Advisory Board – a group now totaling more than 120 business and technology leaders including executives and industry luminaries like Rick Wagoner (former CEO of General Motors), Don Thompson (former CEO of McDonald's), Rick Smith (CEO of Equifax), and Jerry Yang (founder and former CEO of Yahoo). DocuSign Global Advisory Board members share a common vision of empowering the world to go fully digital to transact business anytime, anywhere, on any device securely.

As a part of the DocuSign Global Advisory Board, these thought leaders share business insights and feedback from their diverse backgrounds and experiences to help shape DocuSign's mission, strategy, products and services. Advisory Board members will be gathering today at DocuSign's annual customer, developer and partner conference, DocuSign Momentum 2017.

"DocuSign is a leader in driving companies' digital transformations," said Robert Hohman, CEO of Glassdoor. "With DocuSign as such a foundational, transformational layer of business, I couldn't imagine not being a part of its Global Advisory Board."

"Eliminating paper and increasing the productivity for office workers in Japan is now a national imperative for the country of Japan," said Kuniaki Watanabe, CEO of WINWORKS, "As the global standard for Digital Transaction Management, DocuSign is a catalyst for Japan's digital transformation."

"DocuSign transforms how companies grow revenue, meet compliance, and take care of customers," said Maggie Wilderotter, former CEO of Frontier Communications and CEO of the Grand Reserve Inn. "It's a pleasure to be able to interact with such a powerhouse of industry executives on the DocuSign Global Advisory Board."

"The DocuSign Global Advisory Board is one of the most strategic things that we do as it brings together top industry leaders from different countries, different disciplines, and different industries," said Keith Krach, chairman of DocuSign. "Their collective wisdom helps us guide the ship while we're in hyper-growth mode."
